Japanese Beetle Quarantine Is Imposed On Adams County

Adams county has been placed under quarantine against Japanese beetle infestation, effective June 21, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg. The order was issued by State Agriculture Secretary Miles Horst.

Adams county had not previously been included in the area of heavy infestation and quarantine in this section of the state.

As a result of the order, inspection stations will be set up at one or several places in the county where some fruits and all green vegetables leaving for non-infested areas must be inspected to see that they are free of the pest. Peaches are among fruits affected.

Snow cover during the winter months protected beetle grubs and the pests can be expected in large numbers any day in the area of extra heavy infestation, Secretary Horst said. This is roughly a semi-circle extending from Adams and Cumberland through Dauphin, Lebanon, Berks, Lehigh and Northumberland counties.

This year's additions to the heavily infested Jap beetle area are the first since 1946. Besides all of Adams county, new additions include the western one-third of York county; the southwestern half of Cumberland county; the northern half of Dauphin; the northern half of Lebanon county; the northwest corner of Berks, two remaining townships in northern Lehigh, and the northern half of Northampton county. The entire area of each of these counties is now classed as heavily infested. Other entire counties in the quarantined southeastern corner of the state are Lancaster, Chester, Bucks, Montgomery, Philadelphia and Delaware.

Boy Electrocuted In Swimming Pool

Harrisburg, Pa., June 7 (AP)—A 12-year-old boy was electrocuted when a short circuit in an underground power line sent current through a steel ladder in a public swimming pool, Dr. Winfield Yarnell, deputy coroner, said.

Dr. Yarnell said the boy, Clyde Peters, of Harrisburg, died of electric burns yesterday as the water was charged in a 15-foot circle around the ladder at the Gay-Way swimming pool.

The boy and another swimmer, Rosemary Fritsch, 11, were within the charged area at the time. Both suddenly stiffened and sank beneath the surface, Dr. Yarnell said.

Two youths who saw the Peters boy and Rosemary sink, leaped to the rescue but were themselves affected by the current and had to be helped to the pool's edge.

Both young Peters and the girl were taken to the Polyclinic hospital, where doctors said she was not hurt seriously.

District Attorney Carl B. Shelley said he ordered the pool closed pending a further investigation of the boy's death.

Msgr. Furey Speaks
The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Francis J. Furey, S.T.D., rector of St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, praising the Delone teachers for their work with the class pointed out to the graduates, "Above all you were taught something about God. That is the reason for a Catholic system of schools. God is unfortunately excluded from the lives of many of our fellow citizens." He termed the recent decision of the Supreme Court outlawing teaching of religion in schools on released time as "unfortunate. It even goes so far, according to some jurists, to prohibit even the mention of the name of God in our public schools."

He ascribed failure of the United Nations in many matters to the fact that "the name of God is excluded from the charter of the United Nations, and its work is not dedicated to God. They labor in vain, for they are trying to make the basis of the United Nations everything but that which must be the base of all human endeavor—God."

Glee Club Sings
Bishop Leech told the graduates "I look upon you as so much heaven going into the communities in which you will live, a heaven to spiritualize your communities by your example and the things you say."

Out Of The Past

From the Files of the Star and Sentinel and
The Gettysburg Times

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Oregon—Its Call for Aid: The President sent to both Houses of Congress on Monday, the memorial of the Government of Oregon, asking for aid against the ravages of the Indians. The President accompanied the memorial with a recommendation that assistance be immediately returned. . . . The Oregon Debate, when it comes up, will be an interesting one, for it must cover the whole ground of slavery, which is fast becoming the great overshadowing question of national policy.

Married: On the 30th ult., by the Rev. E. V. Gerhart, Benjamin Schriver, Esq., Sheriff of Adams county, to Miss Maria, daughter of Mr. Henry Porry, of this borough.

On the 6th inst., by the same, Mr. John Jacob, to Miss Rachel Groff—both of Mountjoy township.

Mr. John G. Brinkerhoff has been appointed Deputy Surveyor for the County.

Whig County Convention: In pursuance of the recommendation of the County Committee, a convention of Whig Delegates from the different Townships and Boroughs of Adams County, assembled in the Court-house in Gettysburg, on Monday, the 29th of May, 1948, at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling a County Ticket, to be supported at the coming Election.

The Convention was organized by the appointment of William R. Sadler, Esq., as President, and D. A. Buehler and Jeremiah Aulabaugh as Secretaries.

The balloting for a county ticket resulted as follows: Assembly, James Cooper; Commissioner, John J. Morningstar; Auditor, Samuel Durbin; Director of the Poor, Henry Brinkerhoff; Prothonotary, John Pickering; Register and Recorder, Wm. W. Hamersly; Clerk of the Courts, Hugh Denwidde; Sheriff, Ephraim Swope; Coroner, Charles Horner.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Pastor Installed.—The Rev. J. W. Lake was installed pastor of the New Chester charge in this county, on the 5th inst. This charge consists of three congregations and has been vacant for over a year.

Election.—At the annual election of officers and directors of the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association: Governor John F. Hartman was elected President; Hon. D. McConaughy, Vice President, and Actuary Directors from Gettysburg—Messrs. David McConaughy, Geo. Arnold, Joel B. Danner, Alex D. Buehler, Dr. Chas. Horner, J. L. Schick and Jno. M. Krauth, . . .

Absent.—This week's issue of the STAR and SENTINEL is made up in the absence of the editor (D. A. Buehler), who is in Canton, Ohio, as one of the delegates to the General Synod of the Lutheran Church. We notice that Revs. Drs. Brown and Hay, Prof. H. L. Baugher, of this place, and Rev. M. J. Alleman, of Littlestown, are also delegates to the same body.

Killed on the Railroad: On Wednesday morning, Mr. John Ertter, of this place, who had been acting as brakeman on one of the freight trains on the Hanover Branch Railroad for a month or two, was killed while the train was passing Cauffman's ore bank, about 2½ miles below Hanover. A frame waste pipe extends from the ore banks across the tracks at an elevation sufficient for trains to pass under. Mr. Ertter was passing from one car to another when the train approached the place. He was seen to stoop to avoid the pipe, but must have miscalculated as the train passed under the pipe, Mr. Ertter was struck on the back of the head, knocked down, and probably instantly killed. When the train was stopped, his body was found on the top of the car. His remains were brought to Gettysburg and buried in the Catholic burying ground on Thursday. He was about 34 years of age, and leaves a widow and three

Today's Talk

OLD FRIENDS

Every new friend is a potential old friend—and you can't have too many old friends! With each increasing year these old friends become mellow in mind and spirit, and so much of their richness is shared with us.

During the past week I journeyed away from home to visit a few of these old friends of mine—and I picked up a new one on the way! For years this new friend had been an unseen one by communication, so that a personal meeting was an extra thrill. How fine it is to meet such a one and to discover that you had vastly more coming to you than you suspected!

But during such journeys as I have just taken, it's sad to go to places where the missed ones once were. Life goes on. It will go on when I drop out, and you drop out. That's the way of the world. So, how important it is that we keep clinging to the old friends while we seek to discover the new ones.

It is well to bear in mind that there is no substitute for a genuine friend. Money can't take his or her place. Nor can great fame or widespread acclaim. Life is dull, and weeded with regrets, with no friend near to cheer and to give comfort, or to re-enforce one's faith. No one can die poor who owns a friend! There is comfort even in the nod of a favorite flower, or in the understanding look from the face of a dog, with his wagging tail! But the human friend is without price or substitute.

I sat in a fine men's club on this recent trip of mine, and watched the men as they came in and greeted one another. Bill, Jack, Fred, Carl, Joe. Something fine and genuine in this familiar greeting among men. Sincerity. No pretense. Interest in the other fellow's ways and problems. "How goes it, Charlie?"

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson were two great Americans—both Presidents. They had many political differences, but both were patriots who strove earnestly to build upon this western continent a great free nation. They must have had a high regard for each other, regardless of their many opposing views, for when Adams was dying his last words were: "Thomas Jefferson still survives." But he didn't survive. Both these great men went to their long sleep at about the same time. Jefferson died on July 4th, 1826—a most appropriate date!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject, "Just Relax"

AFTER-DINNER SPEECH
The after-dinner speaker stands and clears his throat and rubs his hands;

Gives thanks for all the praise profuse
With which the chairman turned him loose,

Then sets the patient guests a-roar
With jokes they've often heard before.

"It is a privilege," says he,
"This happy night with you to be.
Outside there blows a chilling storm,

But here for all is welcome warm
God bless the ladies! May they be Always as beautiful to see.

"I wish the cooks were in the hall,
For I should like to thank them all.
I'd stouter be if my wife could
Prepare a dinner half so good.
Stand up, committee members now,
And for your labors take a bow!"

My son, I've written this to teach
You how to make a banquet speech.

TOMATOES ARE FAVORITES OF THE AMATEURS

The favorite vegetable with freedom gardeners is the tomato. A survey made by the United States Department of Agriculture proved that nine out of 10 amateurs grow it.

When plants are allowed to sprawl on the ground, they occupy too much space for many small gardens, but when grown to a single stem, tied to a stake or similar support, the maximum crop can be harvested for the space occupied.

Single stem plants can be spaced a foot apart, and double stem plants 21 inches apart, while plants that lie on the ground require four feet each way.

This applies to varieties of normal vine growth which are the only kind that should be staked and pruned. So-called determinate varieties, of which the stems stop growing after they reach a certain length while the plant devotes all its energies to ripening the fruit which has set, should never be pruned and get no benefit from staking but they may be planted as closely as 18 inches apart and allowed to spread on the ground. They bear a good early crop but over a shorter season than the older, later varieties.

Need Constant Pruning
Keeping tomato plants pruned and tied to stakes or a fence needs constant attention. At the joint where each leaf grows on the main stem a branch will develop, and this must be cut or pinched off before it it four inches long, otherwise its removal may weaken the plant. If allowed to grow, secondary branches will develop from it and soon all effort to keep the plant within bounds will have to be abandoned. A few days' neglect of pruning may spoil the plants.

To grow a two-stem plant, select one branch coming from the main stem 10 inches above the surface and allow that to grow. Both main stem and branch will have to be pruned regularly. Single-stem plants can be supported by a heavy cord stretched from a suitable tall support and anchored to the ground near the plant. The stem as it grows can be twisted about the cord.

Two-stem plants may be tied with soft twine, strips of cloth, raffia or special ties made of wire imbedded in paper strips. Use a loose loop

Notes On Growing Beans

Like many other food and ornamental plants, snap beans lose their productivity after pods are allowed to ripen on the vine. Keep snap beans picked close to stimulate the plant to heavier and continued production.

It is a wise practice to grow some of the kidney beans for snap use and then allow a heavy late crop of pods to mature for dry kidney beans. These are exceptionally rich in flavor and general taste and make an excellent dish to alternate with field (dry) beans over winter. Where planted purposely for production of dry beans, kidney beans should be given around 95 to 105 days from date of planting to date of harvest. This means they should be planted soon for early September maturity.

Field (dry) beans do best when grown in a weed-free soil in order to eliminate frequent cultivation. Tillage spreads communicable diseases which greatly outweigh the limited benefits of cultivation. But in case cultivation is necessary, it should be done when the bean foliage is dry.

Field beans should be planted by the middle of June, as most varieties require at least 90 days to mature from date of planting. And it is advisable to plan so the crop will have dry weather in early September for ripening.

There is still time to make plantings of bush Limas, most varieties of which reach edible size as green shelled beans in 68 to 75 days after planting. Pole varieties require 25 to 35 days longer.

Gardeners should grow a bountiful crop of late snap beans to can and dry. Of course, green beans must be canned under pressure for safety. But drying remains, as it has since early colonial days, a satisfactory way to store this fine winter food crop. Plantings may be made until early August, although unseasonably early frosts may catch the last planting. Therefore, it is advisable to stress plantings over the next four to six weeks.

There is no justification for shunning bean growing because of past experiences with the Mexican bean beetle. This pest can be controlled by proper measures, preferably with rotenone spray or dust. Growers who have failed to conquer this beetle and its hungry grub (larva) have either delayed combat too long or used the wrong insecticide in the wrong manner. As often emphasized here, the under sides of the leaves must be coated with the poison to kill the beetle and its young.

If bacterial blight, recognized by irregular spots on the green pods, has been unusually destructive in the past, it may be wise to grow one or more of the somewhat resistant varieties, including Blue Pod.

around the stem to avoid constriction or cutting.

Require Sun And Water
Tomatoes require full sun and regular watering. When the soil is allowed to dry out, with fruit set, a black decay spot known as "blossom-end-rot" may develop on the fruit. Watering during dry spells will prevent this. When fruit begins to mature, plant food worked into the soil around the plant, using a tablespoonful at a time, will help produce more and larger fruit.

Tomato roots spread out near the surface and should never be disturbed. Never cultivate deep enough to touch them; a heavy mulch of straw or lawn clippings about each plant is better than cultivation and helps keep the soil moist.

Electric fish soon exhaust their power to generate electricity and require a short rest to restore it.

Do not walk among growing beans when the tops are wet with rain or dew, either to cultivate or harvest. Anthracnose, often called Pod-Spot, is spread chiefly by this means. Pod-Spot symptoms differ from those of bacterial blight by the roundish type of infection instead of the irregular areas of diseased pod tissue.

Protect unusually late plantings of snap and Lima beans from fall frost to prolong productivity well up into October.

Garden Activities For Early In June

Tender summer-flowering bulbs, corms and tubers, such as gladioli, dahlias, montbretias, tigridias, zephyranthes, ismene, tuberose, galtonias and tuberous-rooted begonias, may be planted this month.

Sow perennial seed before the hot weather arrives.

Vine crops, such as cucumbers and squash, should be given sheltered positions. They can be planted between rows of corn.

Plant leaf lettuce, onions, radishes, Swiss chard, beets, carrots, kohlrabi, endive, snap and lima beans, New Zealand spinach, tampala and okra; also sweet corn, parsley and broccoli.

If the weather is hot, shade newly set-out plants and seedlings for several days until they have become established.

Set out tomato plants, eggplants and pepper plants.

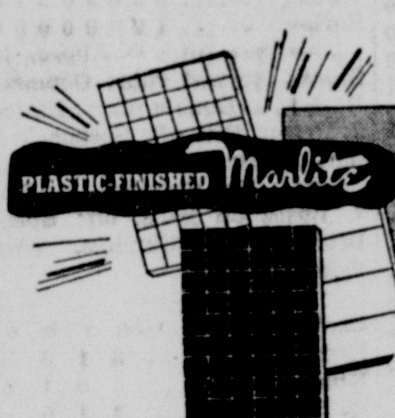

Water plants before and after applications of fertilizer.

Remove peony flowers as soon as they begin to fade.

Discontinue cutting asparagus when the shoots become spindly. Give the bed an application of a complete plant food.
